

Dear friends,

I wish each of you, your families and the Teachers' Teams in the countries of your continent a happy Easter.

"O death, where is your victory?" Isaiah tells us, and Paul proclaims that "love does not die". Today, as in the past, humanity is in mortal danger: wars, dictatorships, ecological disasters, injustices...

Easter, a day of light following darkness, a prefiguration of eternal clarity, the resurrection of all the Teaching Teams in the world.

As Pope Francis has written to us, "let us show that life is stronger than death" through our presence in schools in our countries.

- Christ is resurrected every time we work towards greater synodality in the Church and in our responsibilities.
- Christ is risen every time we live in solidarity with our colleagues and vulnerable people.
- Christ is risen every time we change our lifestyle for greater social justice and respect for the planet.

With the risen Christ, let us revive and rediscover our faith in peace and love for one another, especially for the least of these and for those in our care, in the great freedom of the children of God.

Thank you for all the work you do throughout the year and for your collaboration in the Teachers' Team Movement.

Fraternally
Suzanne
